MOVE POLLING PLACE IN EAST PLUMSTEAD BY COURT ORDER

Hearing On Petition Results
In No Opposition To Move

MASTER FILES REPORT

Approve Appointment of The Election Judge In Sellersville

DOYLESTOWN, May 11.—At a session of miscellaneous court yesterday a petition asking for the removal of the polling place in East Plumstead township from the Central House, Point Pleasant, to the Point Pleasant Fire House, was granted by President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

The hearing on the petition resulted in no opposition. Three residents of the district, including Albert Bachman, proprietor of the hotel in which the polling place has been located, informed the Court that he had no objections to the change. It was testified that the Fire House is much better equipped to handle the election. There are 239 voters in the district.

Webster S. Achey, Doylestown, filed a master's report in the divorce proceedings of Louisa C. McHale, of Langhorne, against Philip Edward McHale, of 249 Tyler street, Trenton.

A master's report was filed by John L. Dubois, Doylestown, in the divorce case of Anna B. Patrick, of Bristol Township, against George B. Patrick, of 6013 Tulip street, Wissinoming.

A petition for the appointment of Edward Tinsman as judge of elections in Bensalem township, Lower East, to succeed Benjamin Emery, was filed.

A petition of Edwin L. Myers, constable of Plumstead township, asking for the appointment of a deputy constable to serve at the Plumstead township, East district, election, was filed. The petition asked that the appointment of Howard Geddes be confirmed.

A petition for the appointment of Francis J. Dougherty as minority inspector of Langhorne Manor because of the removal of Jack Wingert, was filed today.

Peter Kocis, of Springfield township, who was sentenced last November to serve not less than 10 months or more than three years in the County Prison, was granted a parole by Judge Boyer. Kocis, according to Sheriff Horace E. Gwiner, has been a model prisoner. Kocis was placed on probation in charge of Antonio Russo, of Bristol. He was convicted of a robbery charge in Springfield township. The minimum sentence would have expired in September of this year.

Advocate Widening of The Lincoln Highway to Trenton

SOUTH LANGHORNE, May 11.—Under the auspices of the Business Men's Association representative citizens from many sections of Bucks County met in Red Men's Hall here to discuss methods of getting the Pennsylvania Highway Department to widen the present Lincoln highway to Trenton.

A majority of the landowners have agreed to give the necessary land. Besides speeches by local people, officers of the Bucks County Taxpayers Association strongly favored the widening of the present Highway from the standpoint of economy and public convenience. A committee was appointed to insist on this improvement being made at once.

The Morrisville Chamber of Commerce and other Civic Organizations have been active in behalf of this movement for several months.

Returns Here After 69 Years To Renew Acquaintances

A Civil War veteran, now a nonagenarian, who in 1865 figured in a train wreck here, visited Bristol yesterday.

The aged traveler is William W. Fish, of North Uxbridge, Massachusetts, who resided in Bristol for a few months during his young manhood. Mr. Fish sustained fractures of both lower limbs in the wreck of a train on the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge here 69 years ago. He was taken to the White Hall Hospital (known also as China Hall), where some physicians contended he would never walk again. But 69 years later he has returned to the scene of the tragic accident in which about 20 were killed and 30 or 40 injured, and is hale and hearty, and walks with no difficulty.

The veteran, who is past department commander of the New Hampshire G. A. R., and at present department chaplain, spoke on Wednesday evening at the Bordentown (N. J.) Military Institute, and stopped in Bristol enroute to Washington, D. C. The trip through this section is being made by automobile in company with his son.

GIRL, 5, DROWNS IN ADAMS HOLLOW CREEK

Catherine Lynn Falls Over
Wall On North Side of Stream

BIRTHDAY THIS MONTH

A five-year-old girl fell into Adams Hollow Creek, just across the street from her home, yesterday afternoon, and was drowned.

The victim, Catherine Lynn, daughter of Harry and Jane Lynn, 1101 Radcliffe street, fell off the retaining wall on the north side of the creek. She would have been five years of age on May 30th.

As soon as the child was found missing by her parents, and it was thought that perhaps she had gone to the creek, a hurry call was sent for the police.

Chief Linford J. Jones, County Detective Russo and Firemen Stowe, Bennett and Spesito responded. Jones, Russo and Stowe dragged the section of the creek where it was thought the child had fallen.

Then it was reported that the youngster had been seen playing beneath a large tree, beside the creek. Chief Jones grappled at this point and recovered the body.

It was a tragic scene when the little tot was brought to the surface. The crowd gasped and many an eye was tear-stained. The grief-stricken father was overcome.

Little Catherine was a jolly little girl. She just wandered across the street yesterday and played with her little friends. When meal time arrived Catherine's playmates went home. She sat beneath the tree playing, it is said. Then she must have went over nearer the wall and fell off.

The mother and father, two brothers, Harry, 13; Billy, 10; two sisters, Betty, 7; Jane, 12, survive.

"Bolero" Is Attraction Extraordinary at Grand

An attraction of extraordinary merit will be at the Grand Theatre tonight, "Bolero" Raft and Carole Lombard in "Bolero."

In addition to these two popular stars there will also be seen the famous Sally Rand, the great fan dancer, who electrified the country at the Worlds Fair in Chicago last year. Mr. Raft in this picture introduces the new dance invented by him and which the country is taking up. George Raft became famous as a teacher of dancing to the Prince of Wales, and is without a doubt one of the world's most graceful and polished dancers, and with Miss Lombard as his partner there is sure to be a treat in store for everyone.

The story of "Bolero" is interesting and convincing. It has romance and thrills and is perfectly enjoyable to all classes. There will also be shown another one of those tantalizing musical comedies with catchy songs and beautiful girl dancers.

Real Issues In The U. S. Senate Nomination

Seldom have we seen Statewide political advertisements which have presented such a sustained argument, based upon such substantial facts, as have those of the Pennsylvania Protective Union, in support of the renomination of Senator David A. Reed, which have been appearing in this and other newspapers throughout Pennsylvania.

We hope that every Republican voter in Bucks County will read them, and give thoughtful consideration to the facts set forth, for they concern the interests of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvanians in a very important way.

When you realize that by the end of the current year the Federal Government, through A. A. A., will have handed out approximately a billion dollars chiefly to the farmers of the South and West, and that for every dollar of that subsidy the consumers of Pennsylvania are paying, the farmers of this State are getting back the munificent sum of ONE CENT, you begin to appreciate, with considerable depth of feeling, why the Republican Party of Pennsylvania should nominate a Republican for United States Senator, instead of one who has pledged himself to support all Democratic policies, irrespective of what their consequences may be to the people of this State.

If that were all, it would be more than enough.

But the deliberate and admitted plan to junk certain industries in this State, and thus add new thousands to the lists of the unemployed, by giving the home market to foreign enterprises and transferring Pennsylvania employment to foreign workers, should thoroughly arouse every Pennsylvanian to the extreme jeopardy in which his and her most important interests are being placed by some of this legislation which Senator Reed is fighting, and which Mr. Pinchot has indicated he would support, if sent to the Senate.

With every influence it can bring to bear, the American Federation of Labor is fighting this proposal which would be achieved through the uncontrolled tariff powers the Administration is seeking. And Senator Reed is leading that battle in the U. S. Senate.

Action, not meaningless promises or empty words, has been Senator Reed's history in the Senate. He has been an able, experienced, effective and respected defender of Pennsylvania's interests, whether they have been those of the farmer, the business man, or of those who work in the thousands of mills and factories and shops throughout our State.

During his 12 years in the U. S. Senate, Senator Reed has become a real leader, so recognized by Democrats and Republicans alike, and the prestige he has attained, the seniority he has acquired, and the invaluable experience he has gained, never were more necessary to Pennsylvania than now and in the next few years.

We believe Pennsylvania Republicans will recognize that and nominate him by a majority which will be the forerunner of his election in November.

TO HAVE CHILD HEALTH DAY HERE WEDNESDAY

Children Will Be Examined by Physicians and Nurses

NOW MAKING CANVASS

May Day, better known to some as Child Health Day, will be observed in Bristol, on Wednesday next, when the pre-school child, the one who will enter school for the first time next Fall, will be examined.

The hours for examination are from 10 a. m. until four p. m., and there will be local physicians and nurses in attendance.

The boys and girls will at that time be examined for defects of the teeth, tonsils, eyes, chest, etc.; and parents are being advised to take the pre-school child to this clinic, in order that they might have time to have defects corrected before the opening of school in September. It is also suggested that vaccination, and toxoid treatment for prevention of diphtheria, be attended to as soon as possible.

This work is also being carried out in larger cities and also in rural communities.

Locally members of the Mothers' Association of Bristol public schools are making a canvass, suggesting to the parents that they take advantage of the May Day clinic at the community house.

For the past 10 years the May Day-Child Health Day workers in Pennsylvania have given major emphasis in all their planning to preventive and protective work among the pre-school children, and the work has proved most effective and helpful.

There continues to be shown a mounting interest in this public health work, according to figures from all parts of the state.

The cooperation on the parts of local health authorities in all sections is most noteworthy, and has been a great aid in Bristol also.

HIBERNIANS WIN OUT OVER ODD FELLOWS

Hines' Hit in Fifth Scores
Two Runs and Wins
Game

FINAL SCORE IS 8 TO 7

By T. M. Jono

"Danny" Hines' typical base hit in the fifth inning scoring two runs enabled the Hibernians to score a one-run victory over the Odd Fellows last night on Leedom's field in a Lower Bucks County League tilt. Final score was 8-7.

Hines' single, a drive over the first sack just a few inches inside the foul line, was made from the delivery of Manager Ashby, of the Odd Fellows, who ascended to the peak in an effort to hold the one-run lead the Oddies had developed in the first half of the last inning. Earlier in the fray, Hines crashed out the first home run of the season when he smacked the pill into the swamps in center field.

The Odd Fellows took a one run lead by scoring twice in the fifth, making the score 7-6. Ashby walked Frankovic and Foster followed with a double to right, sending Frankovic to third. Ennis struck out. When J. Roe did likewise the rally seemed over. Ashby curved two called strikes over to Hines and then wasted one. The next pitch was to Hines' liking and he sent a single to right to score Frankovic and Foster with the tying and winning run.

The winners played very ragged ball afeld, being charged with eight errors. These misplays put the Odd Fellows in the lead several times. But the Radcliffe street clan although was helpful to their opponents and gave them several big runs.

The losers used three hurlers in an effort to grab their first win of the season. "Lefty" Warner started and in the fourth gave way to "Lefty" Beck. Beck twirled until the last inning when Ashby went in in an effort to hold a one-run lead. Ashby was the losing moundman.

Previous to the last half of the fifth, the Odd Fellows went ahead when Roe made a two-base wild throw on States' grounder. (Paul's hit went through Foster for an error, scoring States. Still singled, sending Paul to third. Beck struck out. Mortimer hit to left, scoring Paul and when Still also tried to count on the hinge, McGinley's rifle peg nailed him at the plate.

INSULL AIDED BY FRIENDS

Chicago, Ill., May 11.—Friends—even "chance acquaintances" are coming to the front for Samuel Insull and there were indications today that the former multi-millionaire utilities magnate will soon be released from jail under $250,000 bond. Insull may be freed from Cook County Jail by nightfall. His attorney, Floyd E. Thompson, and his son, Samuel Insull, Jr., were both confident that the required sum would soon be raised. "We are trying to raise the necessary $250,000," said young Insull. "We haven't passed the hat but a surprisingly large number of persons are offering to schedule real estate as collateral. They are not rich men; some of them can only be classed as chance acquaintances of my father; not his old friends."

Insull, senior, was scheduled to appear in Federal court this morning to be arraigned on charges of violating the national bankruptcy laws and using the mails in a scheme to defraud. Attorney Thompson indicated that if Insull senior had his way on the bail matter he would remain in jail and as a matter of principle, fight against what the defense regards as "unreasonable demands for bail."

Insull senior expressed his gratitude over the manner in which persons whom he hardly knows are offering to assist him. "I am discovering I have friends whom I never knew of before," he said.

SPEED TO NORMALCY

Pittsburg, May 11.—Speeding along the road to near normalcy, Pennsylvania business and industry this week came within five points of the peak of last year's recovery movement, an International News Service survey revealed today. If the present trend of industrial activity is continued the mark established last August will be surpassed by the middle of June or before. Last year the trend was more abrupt, mounting from the low immediately after President Roosevelt took office, to all but equalling the high for 1931.

ATTACK MAN AND ROB HIM OF 75c; LEAVE HIM IN CAR

George Wetherill, 21, Found Lying in Machine at Eddington

ATTACKED BY 2 MEN

Was Enroute to His Mother's Home When Held Up

EDDINGTON, May 11.—Gagged and tied up, a Doylestown man was found lying in his car along the Bristol Pike here early today.

The man, George Wetherill, 21, Doylestown, had been attacked and one of his eyes were blackened. He was taken to the home of his brother, Parke Wetherill, Bristol.

Wetherill was found by three men. They gave the names of Joseph Bisco, 605 Rising Sun avenue; Gene Bisco, same address, and Anthony Amadeo, 3317 N. Orkey street, Philadelphia.

When found Wetherill had been able to move his body so that he fell over the back of the front seat of his sedan and sound the horn with his head.

It was the sounding of the horn which attracted the attention of the three men in the truck and seeing the position of Wetherill over the back of the seat of his car, stopped to investigate.

Wetherill says he left his brother's home early this morning to drive to his mother's home in Doylestown, where he lives. He took a short cut going via Emille to Lincoln Highway to Newtown and Woodbourne, where he noticed his car swaying.

Wetherill stopped his machine to examine his tires and as he got out of the car he was attacked by two men. A handkerchief was forced into his mouth, another was tied over it. His belt was used to truss his legs while a twisted cloth was used to tie his hands in back of him.

Then Wetherill says he was tossed into the back seat of his car and driven to Newportville and then to Bristol Pike here, where the two men took 75 cents from his pockets and left him.

Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo was informed of the hold-up and is investigating.

Road Tests Wear Out Brakes, But Not New Tires

Road tests so severe that brakes on the automobiles used were worn out every 72 hours were conducted to prove the new G-3 tire, latest development of the Goodyear Tire, according to Charles Nadler, gas station proprietor.

"In order to put the severest possible strains and abuses on the new tires," says Mr. Nadler, "they were driven at 60 miles an hour and brought to an abrupt stop every five miles."

"This punishing test wore out brake linings so rapidly that the brakes had to be adjusted every eight hours, and linings replaced every three days. But the tests proved that the new G-3 was adapted to use on the modern, high speed, high powered automobile."

"Cars had been improving rapidly and tread wear became more of a problem. The road tests all proved conclusively, however, that tire mileage had been stepped up and non-skid tread wear increased on an average of 43 per cent."

"The improvements of the G-3 were accomplished by widening and flattening the tread surface in contact with the road, widening the riding ribs and narrowing the grooves between the non-skid blocks and increasing the number of non-skid blocks in the tire's circumference."

"In my opinion the G-3 tire is the most important contribution of the tire manufacturer to motoring since the introduction of the balloon tire," Mr. Nadler said.

A REVENUE DEPARTMENT

Some people are curiously ignorant of the functions of their state government departments. For example, the name of the Department of Justice gives people the impression that it is concerned with prosecutions but few appreciate what many of the prosecutions mean to the state.

The Department of Justice, through the Attorney General, represents the State in the courts in many actions to recover money, such as disputed inheritance taxes, delinquent corporation taxes and other suits.

Under William A. Schnader, Attorney General under the last two Governors, Fisher and Pinchot, the Department has brought vast sums into the Treasury. The largest was nearly $15,000,000, in the Dorrance inheritance tax case, a United States Supreme Court case.

In carrying on such a department, the Attorney General must, not only know the State and Federal law and practice in both State and Federal courts, but he must be vigilant in recognizing and pushing the State's claims. Mr. Schnader has qualified highly in all respects and at the same time has conducted his department with economy. His experience as Attorney General is one reason why so many Republicans have backed him strongly for the Governorship.

THE "LISTENER" HAS HIS DAY

It has been said time and again that there is no critic more "difficult" than one who pays nothing. This is true of radio with one qualification.

In a sense the radio listener pays nothing for the costly programs he hears and is so free to criticize. Indirectly it is his money which operates the broadcasting stations and provides the talent that goes before the mike.

The whole radio structure is based on the investment of owners in the receiving sets. No single person's investment is large, but when the average cost of single sets is multiplied by millions, and to this is added the annual cost of operation and upkeep, the aggregate cost to the listeners of radio programs reaches vast proportions.

Therefore the readiness of the listener to criticize the radio fare is not to be condemned on the ground that he has no financial interest in the matter. Just as well condemn criticism by the people of plays, books, merchandise and candidates. That of the receiving set owner is the one financial interest most fundamentally essential to the entire radio business, and the promoters of that business will not cease to give most careful attention to what the listener says about programs.

Should people stop buying radio sets and accessories and "silent" nights become a general thing in the homes, high-powered salesmanship would not avail the broadcasters in selling the "time" for which the demand is still great. Popularity is the greatest asset of the radio business.

You can prove anything by the record. Grandfather said cigarettes would ruin the country and now looks at it.

In horse and buggy days, the things that shut off the view were called blinders instead of billboards.

"MA CINDERELLA" by Harold Bell Wright

SYNOPSIS

In the little village of Pine Knob, in the Ozarks, "Uncle Jimmie" Cartwright laboriously rides his mule towards Ann Haskel's house, speculating on the possibility of "refreshments," when he comes upon Diane Carroll painting the landscape. Though born to wealth, Diane, like her father, is indifferent to society much to the disappointment of her Aunt Jessica who mothered Diane. Encouraged by her father, Diane studied art seriously, working as desperately as self-supporting, poverty-stricken fellow students. When Diane's first picture was accepted, Bill Carroll gave a party for his daughter which sent Aunt Jessica to bed for a week. Following her father's and aunt's deaths, Diane traveled extensively and accepted a friend's invitation to visit Wilderness Club in the Ozarks upon learning that she could paint there and do just as she pleased. "Uncle Jimmie" and Diane take to each other instantly. He is surprised, upon learning she is a New Yorker, to find her just like "home folks." As they talk, Ann Haskel, a typical backwoods character, appears on a big bay horse.

CHAPTER III.

The artist and the old mountaineer watched in silence as the horse-woman rode on past them, apparently without so much as a glance in their direction, although she must have been aware of the two people and the gray mule.

"She does that every day," said Diane, in a half-whisper.

"Does what?" murmured Uncle Jimmie.

"Rides past without even looking at me. No matter where I work, I am sure to see her. She did it the first day I set up my easel, and she has done it every day since. It makes me feel funny—as if she were spying on me."

Uncle Jimmie grinned at Diane's tone. "Ann's allus that a way. I reckon you ain't met-up with her yet."

"No, but I should like to."

"You might like hit an' then ag'in you might not. Hit all depends. That's been some met-up with Ann Haskel that didn't never come back for no second meetin'."

Diane shrugged. "I've heard enough about her, goodness knows."

"Uh-huh—hit's easy to hear more'n enough 'bout most anybody. I reckon as how them Lodge folks ain't some interested in Ann."

Uncle Jimmie's observation was in the nature of a question, and from under his tattered hat brim he slyly watched the artist's face.

"They certainly have a lot to say about her," returned Diane, "but their guesses are only half right, the woman must be an extraordinary character."

"I reckon a body might call Ann all of that," Uncle Jimmie agreed, dryly. As if to cover his remark he hastened to add: "Ann trades with the feller who keeps house for ye all at the Lodge."

"Yes, I understand she sells milk and butter and eggs and vegetables to the club steward."

The backwoodsman laughed. Diane looked at him—a look so direct and questioning that had his weather-beaten old skin been of a texture less sensitive than saddle leather, he would have blushed like a schoolboy. As it was, his confusion was so evident that Diane echoed his laughter.

"Tell me about this Ann Haskel, Uncle Jimmie."

The old mountaineer hedged with, "She lives up thar in that big log house yonder."

"Indeed!" murmured Diane. "It seems to me that I have heard something to that effect. That house is sometimes spoken of as the Haskel place, isn't it?"

"Aw shuck!" returned Uncle Jimmie, sheepishly. "Thar ain't no rightly much to tell 'bout Ann Haskel."

"Meaning that there is not so much that one dares to tell?"

"G-e-e-rusalem-on-high! But you're a knowin' gal, now, ain't ye? I reckon if I don't talk now you'll figger as how I'm afeared to."

"I sure will," laughed Diane. "Come on, Uncle Jimmie; you know you are just dying to tell me all about her."

Uncle Jimmie surrendered graciously. "Wal, you see, Ann Haskel, she jest about run this hysax part of the country. I reckon mebbe he's a good thing she does, too. Ann's a natchal-born manager, if a there ever was one. Got the biggest house, the best farm, best horses an' stock, raises the biggest crops, an' makes the most money of anybody anywheres in these Ozark Mountains. She's the all-fredest, knowin'-est, workin'-est female woman anybody ever heared tell of. An' that ain't the half of hit."

"Fine!" cried Diane. "Is there a Mr. Haskel?"

"Not no more there ain't. Ann's a widder four times that I know about; Ed Haskel an' three more after him. Don't nobody hyar 'bout 'bouts know how many thar war 'fore Haskel. Him an' her come into these parts together—they an' their little boy John Herbert, an' Nance Jordan. Jerry Todd war her last man. He war married before, too, an' had a boy named Jeff. After Jerry Todd war took Ann went right on a-raisin' his boy like he say nothin'. 'Course, don't nobody dast ask Ann herself. Ann Haskel don't like fer folks to be askin' questions. Don't like fer we-us ter talk much, neither," he added, with a grin.

"But, Uncle Jimmie, how can the woman call herself Ann Haskel when her last husband's name was Todd?"

"How can she? Huh! you jest don't know her. She jest does. Can't nobody stop Ann Haskel from doin' 'nuthin' she wants; nobody don't never so much as try. 'Tain't safe. After Jerry Todd war killed Ann she gave out that she aimed to go by the name Haskel 'cause John Herbert war the last of the Haskels, an' that settled hit."

"The last of the Haskels," murmured Diane. "Sounds like the title of a Wild West novel. Uncle Jimmie, who is Nance Jordan? Is she war her own. Jeff's a growed-up man now, but he keeps on a-livin' with her—him an' Nance Jordan. He's an ornery cuss, Jeff Todd is. Can't nobody but Ann do nothin' with him, 'specially when he's lickered-up."

"But what became of her own son? Is he dead, too?"

Uncle Jimmie hesitated. "No, he ain't daid yet, far as anybody's hyeard tell. No, I don't reckon John Herbert's daid—not exactly."

Diane leaned forward with quickened interest.

"But what became of him, Uncle Jimmie? Where is he?"

"'Tain't known whar John Herbert Haskel is," the old mountaineer answered slowly. "Ann she sent him away somewhars right after his paw died—'fore she married her next man. John Herbert war only a little feller then. He must be growed up, too, by now, same as Jeff Todd. Must be all of twenty-four, or five, mebbe, if he sure 'nough ain't daid."

"But why did his mother send him away?" Diane persisted.

"Some 'lows hit war on account of one thing; some 'lows hit war on account of somethin' else. Ain't nobody but Ann Haskel hersef, an' Nance Jordan, mebbe, knows anythin' fer sure. One thing's sure, though—whatever it is, so 't little John Herbert away fer. Ann had her reasons. You can allus count on Ann Haskel a-havin' her reasons."

"What an amazing thing for any woman to do," exclaimed Diane, "to send her own son away and to raise another boy in his place!"

"Yes'm, hit's all of that," agreed Uncle Jimmie. "There's been a right of talk about hit, off an' on—'bout Ann an' Nance an' Jeff an' John Herbert an' a Jedge Shannon what used to come to hunt with Ed Haskel. The Jedge he ain't never been back since Ed died. Yes'm, folks has sure done a heap of wonderin'."

But, shuck! hit's like I say—don't nobody know nothin' 'ceptin' Nance, mebbe, an' she won't tell. Thar's bound to be somethin' funny when a woman like Nance Jordan won't be a relative of Ann Haskel's?"

"Don't nobody know 'bout that, neither. Some says one thing; some says somethin' else. Thar war a feller come through Pine Knob 'bout five years ago, said as how he used to live whar the Haskels did 'fore they moved in hyer—somewhere over nigh the Oklahoma line hit war. He said the Haskels war'n't long in that neighborhood an' that Nance war with 'em when they come. John Herbert war just a baby then. The feller didn't know whar they come from to whar he knowed 'em."

"And little John Herbert, the last of the Haskels, has never been home since he was sent away," Diane said, thoughtfully. "Ann Haskel has never seen her boy during all these years; the boy has never seen his mother. Why, it's—it's almost as if he were dead! It's almost as if the woman killed her only child. I mean, it's almost the same to her."

"Hit sure is jest like you say," agreed Uncle Jimmie slowly. "Ann Haskel sure ain't like no other mother what I ever knowed."

"Did you say that her last husband, Jeff Todd's father, was killed, Uncle Jimmie?"

The mountaineer did not answer readily. At last he said, "Jerry Todd war shot by a revenuer."

"You mean a revenue officer?"

"Uh-huh, revenuers, we uns call 'em."

Diane remembered some of the talk she had heard at the Lodge.

"Did Jerry Todd—was he a— a moonshiner? Did he have a still?"

"I ain't a-sayin' he did or he didn't," was the cautious answer. "He might of 'ed somethin' to do with a still. 'Then ag'in that revenuer might of made a mistake. You might say his killin' Jerry war a mistake, anyhow—whether Jerry war moonshinin' or not. But the mistake didn't never do nobody no hurt 'cause hit never went no furthar. The revenuer he never told nobody what he thought he knowed; he didn't live long enough."

A REVENUE DEPARTMENT

Some people are curiously ignorant of the functions of their state government departments. For example, the name of the Department of Justice gives people the impression that it is concerned with prosecutions but few appreciate what many of the prosecutions mean to the state.

The Department of Justice, through the Attorney General, represents the State in the courts in many actions to recover money, such as disputed inheritance taxes, delinquent corporation taxes and other suits.

Under William A. Schnader, Attorney General under the last two Governors, Fisher and Pinchot, the Department has brought vast sums into the Treasury. The largest was nearly $15,000,000 in the Dorrance inheritance tax case, a United States Supreme Court case.

In carrying on such a department, the Attorney General must, not only know the State and Federal law and practice in both State and Federal courts, but he must be vigilant in recognizing and pushing the State's claims. Mr. Schnader has qualified highly in all respects and at the same time has conducted his department with economy. His experience as Attorney General is one reason why so many Republicans have backed him strongly for the Governorship.

THE "LISTENER" HAS HIS DAY

It has been said time and again that there is no critic more "difficult" than one who pays nothing. This is true of radio with one qualification.

In a sense the radio listener pays nothing for the costly programs he hears and is so free to criticize. Indirectly it is his money which operates the broadcasting stations and provides the talent that goes before the mike.

The whole radio structure is based upon the investment of owners in receiving sets. No single person's investment is large, but when the average cost of single sets is multiplied by millions, and to this is added the annual cost of operation and upkeep, the aggregate cost to the listeners of radio programs readily vast proportions.

Therefore the readiness of the listener to criticize the radio fare is not to be condemned on the ground that he has no financial interest in the matter. Just as well condemn criticism by the people of plays, books, merchandise and candidates. That of the receiving set owner is the one financial interest most fundamentally essential to the entire radio business, and the promoters of that business will not cease to give most careful attention to what he has to say about programs.

Should people stop buying radio sets and accessories, and "silent" rights become a general thing in the home, higher-level salesmanship would not avail the broadcasters in selling the "time" for which the demand is still great. Popularity is the greater asset of the radio business.

You can prove anything by the record. Grandfather said cigarettes would ruin the country and now look at us.

In horse and buggy days the things that shut off the view were called blinders instead of billboards.

"Indeed!" murmured Diane. "It seems to me that I have heard something to that effect. That house is sometimes spoken of as the Haskel place, isn't it?"

"Aw shuck!" returned Uncle Jimmie, sheepishly. "Thar ain't no mighty much to tell 'bout Ann Haskel."

"Meaning that there is not so much that one dares to tell?"

"G-e-r-usenlem-on-high! But you're a knowin' gal, now, ain't ye? I reckon if I don't talk now you'll figger as how I'm afeared to."

"I sure will," laughed Diane. "Come on, Uncle Jimmie; you know you are just dying to tell me all about her."

Uncle Jimmie surrendered gracefully. "Wal, you see, Ann Haskel, she jest about run this backwoods part of the country. I reckon neb-bee, an' she won't tell. Thar's bound to be somethin' funny when a woman like Nance Jordan won't there ever was one. Got the biggest best house, the best farm, best horses an' stock, raises the biggest crops, an' makes the most money of anybody anywhere in these Ozark Mountains. She's the all-fredest, knowin'est, workin'est female woman anybody ever heared tell of. An' that ain't the half of hit."

"Fine!" cried Diane. "Is there a Mr. Haskel?"

"Not no more there ain't. Ann's a widder four times that I know about. Ed Haskel an' three more after him. Don't nobody hear 'bout no more how many thar war 'fore Haskel. Him an' her come into these parts together—them an' their little boy John Herbert, an' Nance Jordan. Jerry Todd war her last man. He war married before, too, an' had a boy named Jeff. After Jerry Todd war took Ann went right on a-raisin' his boy like he say nothin'. 'Course, don't nobody dast ask Ann herself. Ann Haskel don't like fer folks to be askin' questions. Don't like fer we-uns ter talk much, neither," he added, with a grin.

"But, Uncle Jimmie, how can the woman call herself Ann Haskel when her last husband's name was Todd?"

"How can she? Huh! you jest don't know her. She jest does. Can't nobody stop Ann Haskel from doin' nothin' she wants; nobody don't never so much as try. Tain't safe. After Jerry Todd war killed Ann she gave out that she aimed to go by the name Haskel 'cause John Herbert war the last of the Haskels, an' that settled hit."

"The last of the Haskels," murmured Diane. "Sounds like the title of a Wild West novel. Uncle Jimmie, who is Nance Jordan? Is she war her own. Jeff's a growed-up man now, but he keeps on a-lyvin' with her—him an' Nance Jordan. He's an ornery cuss, Jeff Todd is. Can't nobody but Ann do nothin' with him, 'specially when he's lickered-up."

"Tell me about this Ann Haskel, Uncle Jimmie," said Diane.

"But what became of her own son? Is he dead, too?"

Uncle Jimmie hesitated. "No, he ain't dead yet, far as anybody's heared tell. No, I don't reckon John Herbert's dead—not exactly."

Diane leaned forward with quickened interest.

"But what became of him, Uncle Jimmie? Where is he?"

"Tain't known whar John Herbert Haskel is," the old mountaineer answered slowly. "Ann, she sent him away somewhere right after his paw died—fore she married her next man. John Herbert war only a little feller then. He must be growed up, too, by now, same as Jeff Todd. Must be all of twenty-four, or five, neb-bee, if he sure 'nough ain't dead."

"But why did his mother send him away?" Diane persisted.

"Some 'lows hit war on account of one thing; some 'lows hit war on account of somethin' else. Ain't nobody but Ann Haskel herself, an' Nance Jordan, neb-bee, knows anything fer sure. One thing's sure, though—whatever she sent little John Herbert away fer, Ann had her reasons. You can allus count on Ann Haskel a-havin' her reasons."

"What an amazing thing for any woman to do," exclaimed Diane, "to send her own son away and to raise another boy in his place!"

"Yes'm, hit's all of that," agreed Uncle Jimmie. "Thar's been a sight of talk about hit, off an' on—'bout Ann an' Nance an' Jeff an' John Herbert an' a Judge Shannon what used to come to hunt with Ed Haskel. The Judge he ain't never been back since Ed died. Yes'm, folks has sure done a heap of wonderin'."

"But, shucks! hit's like I say—don't nobody know nothin' 'cep'tin' Nance, neb-bee, an' she won't tell. Thar's bound to be somethin' funny when a woman like Nance Jordan won't a relative of Ann Haskel's."

"Don't nobody know 'bout that, neither. Some says one thing; some says somethin' else. Thar war a feller come through Pine Knob 'bout five years ago said as how he used to live whar the Haskels did fore they moved in hyeah—some-where over nigh the Oklahoma line hit war. He said the Haskels war'n't long in that neighborhood an' that Nance war with 'em when they come. John Herbert war jest a baby then. The feller didn't know whar they come from to whar he knowed 'em."

"And little John Herbert, the last of the Haskels, has never been home since he was sent away," Diane said, thoughtfully. "Ann Haskel has never seen her boy during all these years; the boy has never seen his mother. Why, it's—it's almost as if he were dead! It's almost as if the woman killed her only child. I mean, it's almost the same to her."

"Hit sure is just like you say," agreed Uncle Jimmie slowly. "Ann Haskel sure ain't like no other mother what I ever knowed."

"Did you say that her last husband, Jeff Todd's, father, was killed, Uncle Jimmie?"

The mountaineer did not answer readily. At last he said, "Jerry Todd war shot by a revenuer."

"You mean a revenue officer?"

"Uh-huh, revenuers, we uns call 'em."

Diane remembered some of the talk she had heard at the Lodge.

"Did Jerry Todd—was he a moonshiner? Did he have a still?"

"I ain't a-sayin' he did or he didn't," was the cautious answer. "He might of 'ad somethin' to do with a still. Then ag'in that revenuer might of made a mistake. You might say his killin' Jerry war a mistake, anyhow—whether Jerry war moonshinin' or not. But the mistake didn't never do nobody no hurt 'cause hit never went no further. The revenuer he never told nobody he never told nobody he didn't live long enough."

TO SONS AND DAUGHTERS

Away from Home
SUNDAY IS MOTHER'S DAY

Go home to her if you can. Go home by telephone if you cannot go in person. Talk to her personally—in your own words and way tell her that now, as always, you are remembering her. Her joy will be your joy when across the miles you speak as though face-to-face. On Mother's Day a greeting by telephone is the perfect gift—the gift that only you can give.

For Lowest Cost and Greatest Ease...
